DR. HUGH B. CAMPBELL HOME
FROM NATIONAL CONVENTION
The superintendent of the Norwich State Tuberculosis Sanatorium, Dr.
Hugh B. Campbell, returned Wednesday evening from Atlantic City, where, since last week, he has been attending the convention of the National Tuberculosis association.
At its closing session Wednesday the association announced plans for a whirlwind Red Cross Christmas seals sale in December for the purpose of raising $5,000,000. The money will be used in 1920 to carry on an intensive fight for the prevention and control of the disease, the great increase of which in the United States was startlingly revealed first by the draft examinations of millions of men and later by the strain of the war. Delegates at the convention representing 1,500 states and local anti-tuberculosis associations pledged themselves to the work.

The drive will open the first week of December and will last until the first of the year. In addition to the efforts to raise the funds necessary, it will afford an opportunity for a great educational campaign to arouse the people's attention to recognition of the economic menace of tuberculosis and stir them to united effort for its eradication.

day and like all affairs conducted by the society, proved to be a grand success. The generous gifts of the members as well as the parishioners resulted in counters well laden with clothing and wearing apparel as well as wares of various kinds which went for a nominal figure. The sale opened at 9 o'clock in the morning with buyers in waiting and continued until about 5 o'clock in the evening. As a result of the day's labor the society realized

LUCY CASE DECISION BY CHIEF JUSTICE

Chief Justice Samuel O. Prentice of Hartford wrote the supreme court decision in the case of Mrs. Mary Lucy against the City of Norwich in which he finds no error in the verdict of the jury in the superior court that gave Mrs. Lucy damages of $2,000 for the broken hip she sustained in a fall on the icy sidewalk in front of 248 Main street on the morning of Dec. 20, 1918.
All the associate justices concurred in the decision. Before the case came to trial Mrs. Lucy died, but the case was continued for her estate.
In his decision Justice Case says in part as follows:

The reasons of appeal, considerable in number, may be condensed and stated under four heads, to wit: (1) That the court erred in holding the defendant liable for negligence in the creation or maintenance of structural defects in and about the sidewalk where Mrs. Lucy fell whereas the complaint charges no such negligence.

(2) That it erred in finding that Mrs. Lucy was not guilty of contributory negligence.

(3) That it erred in holding the defendant to a stricter rule of responsibility for conditions created by snow and ice upon sidewalks than does the law, and

(4) That it erred in finding certain subordinate facts and failing to find others as requested.

It is true that the court below, in its memorandum of decision, took occasion to observe among other things that the city was and had been negligent in creating or permitting certain structural defects in and about the sidewalk conducive to the formation of bodies of ice upon it at the point of injury and that in the finding of the negligence of the city it made to the same subject. But that is not the negligence upon which the judgment was predicated. The ultimate conclusion of the court furnishing the basis of its judgment is contained in the concluding paragraph of its finding makes this clear. That paragraph reads as follows: "The fall of Mrs. Lucy was the proximate result of the negligence of the city in failing to remove or remedy the defective conditions through the accumulation of ice and snow on the sidewalk in front of No. 248 Main street as required by law within reasonable time after the snow storm of December 15, 1918, and after the same had existed in said defective condition for a sufficient time to impute knowledge and notice of the defect to the city of Norwich."

The complaint that the court held the defendant up to too high a standard of duty is not well founded. Its appeal to the familiar statement in Congdon vs. Norwich, 37 Conn. 414, 419, that in our vigorous climate the duty of cities and towns in respect to snow and ice is and must be very limited does not suffice to permit it to escape liability in the present case.

The finding of the court as to the condition of the walk for several days prior to the accident and the absence of all efforts during that time to render it safe for public travel save for the partial removal of fallen snow cannot reasonably be said to fit out the full measure of a city's duty in the care of a sidewalk, located as this was, at its business center and in the ordinary course traversed by a large number of persons. Certainly the court in so holding did not disregard any rule of municipal duty which has received the sanction of this court.

The defendant's contention that the court was in error in holding that Mrs.
Lucy did not by her own negligence contribute to her injuries finds no support under the finding save upon the broad proposition that no one who is aware of the icy condition of a sidewalk can, in the exercise of ordinary prudence, proceed over it however great the care exercises in doing so. There is no such drastic rule of law. Mrs. Lucy had gone from her home to do family shopping downtown. In so doing she had observed the icy condition of the walk. Her errands done, she wished to return.
As she approached the place where she fell she saw ice which covered the whole width of the walk. The street at this point was likewise filled with ice and slush. She kept to the walk, proceeding with the greatest care, and while trying to avoid what appeared to be a particularly dangerous spot she stepped upon another covered with snow, and slipped and fell. No element of negligence here appears or is elsewhere in the case inferred unless it be the negligence of her not to stay at home and forego her shopping, or else to seek some safe haven of refuge downtown after the had arrived there.

The facts claimed to have been found without evidence or not found though proven concern matters which possess no importance as related to the questions herein considered save the ones contained in the paragraph of the finding which recite Mrs. Lucy's conduct and care in passing over the spot where she fell. That recital contains in all of its particulars the testimony upon that point given at the trial.

Poultny Bigelow, who is known as a writer, adventurer and traveler, and who lectured at the Norwich Free Academy at the annual alumni meeting in June 1915, is critically ill with

POULTNEY BIGELOW

lockjaw at the city hospital in Kingston, N. Y. His serious illness comes from an affection of a finger received when he was at work repairing a stone wall on his farm at Malden-on-the-Hudson.

Mr. Bigelow is an Academy alumnus of the class of 1873. He is a son of to France under President Lincoln. Mr.

Bigelow made his first journey around the world in a sailing ship in 1875 and 1876, and was the first to take a canoe through the iron gates of the Danube.
He studied tropical colonization in nearly every colony in the world. He has lectured at principal universities on modern history and colonial administration.

For more than twenty-five years Mr.
